Shetland Pony Auctioneer Is Given Key to City

Hope Star photos & engravings

Shopping and Hunting About Alike—Both Highly Contagious

By MARY ANITA LASETER

TCP — Col. Ray Holder of Harrisonville, Mo., right, co-manager of the second Shetland Pony Auction held in Fair Park Coliseum Friday, is given the key to the city by Mayor George Frazee as the proceedings started at 1 p.m. At extreme left is Frank Douglas, president of the Third District Livestock Show association, co-manager of the Auction. The man between Frazee and Holder is Roy Arnold, a ringman from Atlanta, Ga.

MIDDLE — The opening show pony was this mare handled by Mrs. David Schaefferger (on). Owner Ralph Brewer of Marietta, Okla. Mr. Douglas bought her for $125.

HOTTON — Part of the Auction crowd which braved cold weather to see Hope's second Shetland Pony event. The initial Auction was held at the Coliseum last July.

Look out! It's contagious. The infection is sometimes called "hunting" and sometimes "shopping." Both are widespread all this time of the year, and are often marked by similar symptoms. One person who has been struck by the infection may be successful. But even if he doesn't, the multiplying enthusiasm and two bright eyes. By the end of the day, the hunter and the shopper alike find themselves with exhaustion and two tired feet.

A certain amount of satisfaction is gleaned by this type of person who has been struck by the infection. If the search proves successful. But even if it doesn't, the multiplying enthusiasm and two bright eyes. By the end of the day, the hunter and the shopper alike find themselves with exhaustion and two tired feet.

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of suggested Highways four maps which Hope Star will publish on a weekly basis. The series will cover the country and Southern during the winter months, and the Northern sections in the spring. ## Alford Likely to Be Seated as a Democrat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he ran as an independent Dr. Dale Alford of Little Rock has a good chance of being seated as a Democrat in the new House of Representatives, in view of past similar cases.

Alford, segregationist member of the Little Rock School Board, ran as a write-in candidate and defeated veteran Rep. H. R. Hays (D-Ark.) for the Fifth District post. Hays had counseled what he called moderation and common sense in dealing with racial matters.

Rep. John A. Blatnik (D-Minn.) has challenged Alford's right to be recognized as a Democrat in the House, since Alford beat the Democratic nominee, Hays.

Blatnik indicated — but did not say definitely — that he would raise the issue in the caucus of House Democrats Jan. 6.

In two cases in the past, winners over Democratic nominees seem to be recognized themselves as Democrats.

One case involved the late Rep. Percy Priest of Tennessee. He ran as an independent in 1949 in the Fifth Tennessee District and defeated incumbent Joseph Byrnes, a democrat. Priest subsequently was accepted as a Democrat in the House and became chairman of the House Commerce Committee and an important party leader.

In 1949 Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. was elected of a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rep. Sol. Blood (N.Y.). Roosevelt ran as the candidate of the Liberal and Four Freedoms Party, defeating three opponents, including a Democrat. Like Priest, Roosevelt sat with the Democrats, voted with them and was given committee assignments by Democrats.

He was reelected to the 82nd and 83rd Congresses.

Under House procedure when independents are elected the controlling party usually provides committee assignments.

ALC Bypasses the Highway Dept. Budget

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative Council yesterday left it up to the General Assembly's joint budget committee to decide on the Highway Department's budget request.

That was the only major budget for the next biennium the council did not act on as it closed seven weeks of hearings.

The highway agency asked for $83,900,000 in 1959-60 and $95,920,000 in 1960-61, an increase over current appropriations.

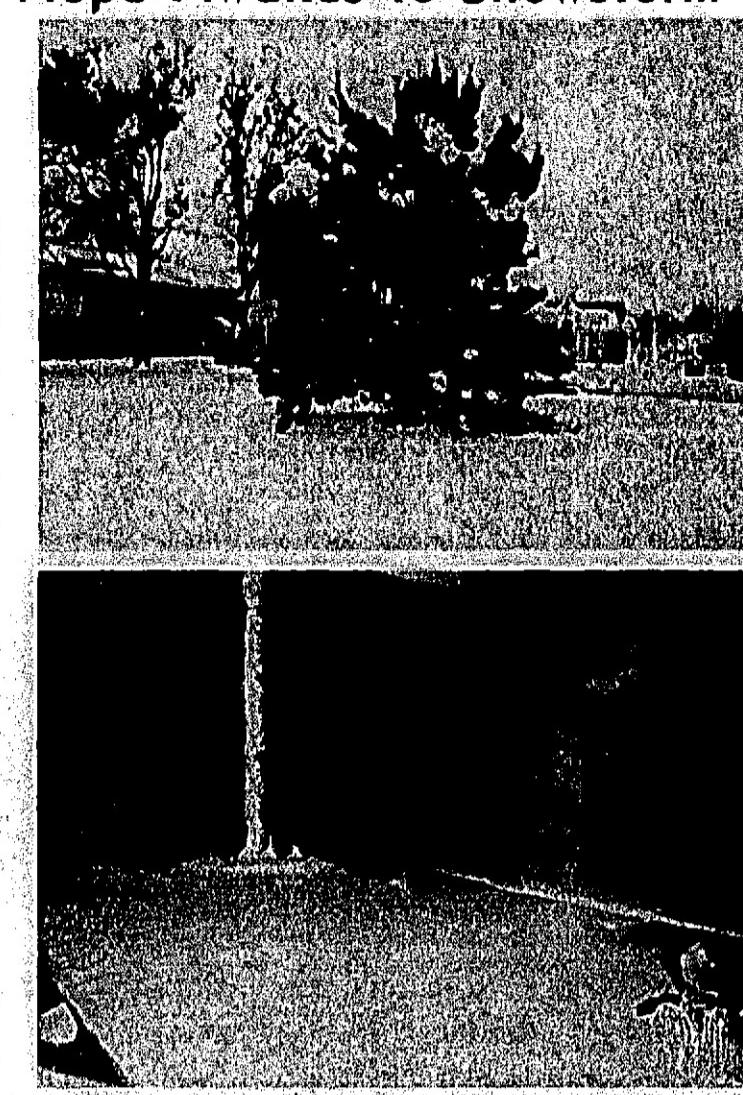

In other action during the final session, the council:

1. Approved $41,831,500 in year

Says Russia Will Carry Out Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The continuing struggle over the racial integration of schools was chosen by editors of United Press International today as the big news story of the day.

He said the Soviet Union might again impose a total blockade on the city's Western-occupied part.

The West faces a dangerous situation, Grewe emphasized, even though Russia probably does not intend to start a major war over the former German capital.

The German ambassador made it clear in a speech prepared for a luncheon at the National Press Club that he sees little if any hope for ending the Berlin crisis in talks with Russia.

"There is not much to negotiate on Berlin," he said.

"The monstrosity of Berlin's situation can only be done away with by the reunification of Germany. You cannot negotiate, however, on the reunification issue on the basis of a Soviet ultimatum and under the threat of a unilateral destruction of mutually binding arrangements on Berlin and

NEW YORK (UPI) — The continuing struggle over the racial integration of schools was chosen by editors of United Press International today as the big news story of the day.

He said the Soviet Union might again impose a total blockade on the city's Western-occupied part.

They noted that the battle was waged all the way from the Supreme Court of the United States to remote hamlets in the South.

Kremlin Clock Signals Same on Chimes

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There must be a Kremlin clock that rings every year just before the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic military alliance meet in Paris. It's beginning to ring regularly.

You can see the pattern. Bang, the clock goes. Premier Nikita Khrushchev jumps up and tells the boys in charge of the propaganda section: "Start pumping."

It happened last year. Nor it's happened again.

Last year Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was all set to fly to Paris for the NATO meeting.

Then, two days before Dulles' takeoff, the Russians threw out what they must have thought a blockbuster.

In a 3,000-word letter to President Eisenhower, the then Premier Nicolai Bulganin — with Khrushchev at his side — suggested a summit meeting and a ban on atomic bomb tests.

There was nothing new in it — in the way of fresh ideas — and State Department officials branded it a propaganda triumph and to distract and maybe split the Allies before they met in Paris.

Thursday the Kremlin clock rang again, this time just a day before Dulles' scheduled takeoff for the NATO meeting in Paris Sunday.

This time the Russians tried a one-two-three punch with Khrushchev, Moscow radio and Tass, the official Soviet news agency, all sabotaging the pump handle.

The biggest and most critical problem facing the foreign ministers in Paris is the demand made by Khrushchev that the United States, Britain and France all clear their troops out of West Berlin and leave it a free city.

The Western powers — particularly the United States and Britain — have indicated they'll do no such thing. The United States, Britain and France, under agreements made with the Russians after World War II, have troops in West Berlin.

West Berlin is 10 miles within Eastern Germany. For the Western powers to pull out would leave all Berlin, including the West Germans who have built up their sector, at the mercy of the East German Communists.

The Soviet Union proposed to turn over to the East Germans control of the corridors through which the Western powers now have access to Berlin.

The West German government wants the Allies not to yield to the Soviet pressure. But the Russians since Nov. 10 have made ugly suggestions indicating they're in for a rough time if they don't pull out.

So Thursday, one day before Dulles was to fly to Paris, Tass opened up in a move clearly intended to distract the Western foreign ministers when they meet Sunday in Paris and again if possible to split them.

Tass accused the West of still not wanting to give up its grip on Berlin.

"We do it for fun. And because I'm a big ham in heart too," he grinned. "Talking into a radio every day you don't get any audience reaction. Out there those soldiers and sailors are the best audience in the world."

The shows are held on makeshift stages, sometimes out in the middle of snow storms. But we always have a huge crowd.

Oriental Audience

"One year I ran through my usual patter to warm up the audience, but nobody laughed. I looked closest at the crowd and realized that of about 2500 men there were only 40 or 50 Americans. The rest were Oriental GIs. So I asked a liaison officer to interpret for me."

"When I cracked a joke he would translate it for me. The monologue was a howling success. After the show I thanked my interpreter for handling my gags so well."

"Your stuff?" he said. "Heck, I was on Khrushchev's proposal about neutralizing West Berlin. It repeated that use of force in defense of the Western sectors of Berlin would be met with force by the Soviet Warsaw Alliance.

Radio Moscow chimed in with the statement that the situation in West Berlin will have to be changed.

And Khrushchev — now indisputably the Soviet Union's No. 1 man since Bulganin has been pushed so far out of sight no one bears of him much any more — let go on his own.

He was quoted in an interview by a German newspaper as saying as giving this warning:

"If the West attempted to break through East German territory to Berlin by force, to supply their Berlin garrisons, there would be war and the use of the Soviet Union's most powerful weapon."

"It's the only question I have all year," Khrushchev explained.

"And I want them to do it in a better and more just way to spend it."

They called her "Maggie the Cat"

THE STORY: Adam has just learned that Dan, one of his business partners, has become financially involved by losing "other people's money" in speculations.

Chapter XI

"You mean this will implicate me?" Hope asked and her color faded.

"Not in that sense, none of this has anything to do with Dan and me as partners. The people they didn't come to the firm. They came to Dan, as relatives, friends, or friends of friends. All outside the office."

She said, "I still don't understand."

"Everything paid off at first, so they signed over a number of conservative, good investments and they took their savings from their accounts."

"But what can we do?" she asked. And this came from beneath the surface, "Poor Dan."

"That's about the size of it," Adam agreed. "We'll sell what he can, to pay what he can. We'll have to find the rest."

"But in Heaven's name, why?"

"We've been friends a long time, for one thing."

After a while she said, "All right, I don't agree with you, no, now anyway. But, all right."

Then he said, with patience, "Aside from that, the implication would follow. So it isn't all disinterested. I'd like to keep the firm out of shadow. If -- let us say, and it's quite possible -- some one dies or just talks, there's open trouble. The firm's in the clear but the shadow's out. Someone has only to say, 'Isn't that the guy who is a partner of?'"

She cried, "Is a partner? You mean to sit there and say you won't make him let you buy out his interest?"

"No. If he wants to, all right, I'll talk with Marty about it, but I won't ask him to, I don't want to, actually."

"I think you're crazy," she said.

"Possibly, I've always known there was an element of risk with Dan, without dreaming of anything like this, of course. Perhaps it came from the fact that his people had, first, too much money and then comparatively little. That happened our freshman year and he took it big. There was enough for him to finish but not allowance-wise, as it had begun. So he always wanted it back, the financial freedom of the early years. He didn't want it bit by bit -- that takes too long -- but fast, a shower of gold, pie in the sky. He married a girl with money, a girl who loved money, too. As for the partnership, he knew Jim's attitude. Jim was as conservative as a Sunday morning in a village church. Dan knew my attitude, more flexible than Jim's, not so flexible as Dan's. I was the guy in the middle. You know how it all happened; Jim had the most money to put in, Dan had Barbara. I had a little, and you gave me your own."

"I don't have money of my own," said Hope. "We have some money."

"Thank you," he said lovingly.

"Jim had the experience, and the name, but he wanted out of a tie firm and into a smaller, with less work. I think he knew then that it was later for him than the rest of us involved. My background and training were good, people trusted me, they trusted and admired Jim; but they fell in love with Dan. A matter of personality, the golden boy. So, they trusted him too. We made a good team. Even Dan's crazy for juncos, he went to ramble, came into it, for now, and then he exercised it and came out on top; but he never exercised it without talking to Jim or me."

She said, "I still don't see why you want to keep him..."

"I must. We have to free him from the balance of debt and, if possible, save his marriage."

"Is it worth saving?"

"I think any marriage is worth saving."

Now her anger burned again, and against Barbara. She said, "Well, I don't think she loves him."

"She loves him," Adam said, "as much as she can." In the way she can. He's besotted about her. His luck runs with him there. He fell in love with a girl who had "money." He broke off, looked at his wife, and for the first time smiled. "Come to think of it," he said, "she did. I, Susan."

She said, "Not then and not so much as Barbara's."

He sobered again. Dan would sell his soul to make Barbara happy.

"She doesn't love him," Hope said stubbornly.

He said slowly, "She loves the way he loves her; she loves the way he looks and walks and laughs. What's the matter, par-the legal position of the three Western powers in Berlin"

Grews gave his views to the Washington press corps after consulting the Bonn government.

He arranged to fly to Paris immediately to attend Western conferences on the Berlin crisis, opening there this weekend.

The ambassador declined to speculate about countermeasures that might be adopted by the Western powers.

He said there is "a basic identity of judgment and of attitude and full mutual confidence" among the United States, Britain, France and West Germany regarding the Berlin problem.

Various plans, proposals and opinions on how to deal with the crisis should not now be interpreted as differences of opinion, he said.

"I had forgotten the children," she said.

"I had to," said Adam, "until Dan spoke of them. Mostly, he was talking about their mother, Sue."

This was one of the big moments, so he called her Sue and gravely, for this was really big, whether or not she knew it.

"Boys," he said, "have to grow up respecting their father. That sounds right out of the book and it's true. When they are young, they still respect or, according to maturity knowledge, not so much, maybe not at all. But, as we see it, I know what I'm talking about."

"What will we do?" asked Hope presently.

"We'll cut down for a time and I'll have to ask you for the rest of your mother's legacy."

"It's worth saving."

day prosperity is evident on all sides. Industry has come in to build streamlined plants; civic leaders are going all out to capitalize on the city's position as the gateway to the Ozark Mountain playgrounds.

Few cities of 100,000 can boast of five colleges, five radio and two television stations, one of the nation's most modern and colorfully designed newspaper plants, originating a weekly network television show devoted to "country" music and dancing; plus dozens of new motels. Here, distinguished visitors are given the Hibbly Medal. Now the whole tri-state area is stressing everything "hillbilly," from pottery to postcards.

Miles of pebbles, despite the quantity of fishing and camera gear in our car. In this area, the signs begin to appear advertising the almost countless number of privately owned caves that dot the Ozark country, making appealing side trips for the motoring family.

From Noel your Magic Circle route takes you a few miles across the state line, before you head the car east from U. S. 71, and on to Arkansas 72. You will want to stop at Pea Ridge Battlefield, where two of the bloodiest western battles of the Civil War were fought in 1862. Neglected and almost forgotten are two marble monuments in a pasture, erected long ago to honor the two Union and one Confederate general who fell in the action. Only the long struggle of Mrs. Frances Cox Scott, now more than 90, has saved historic Elkhorn Tavern, where she was born and where many hid in the cellar while the battle raged outside. Priceless relics have been preserved in the tavern, which served as a stagecoach stop, first post office and first trading post in the Ozarks.

Six Miles east of Pea Ridge Battlefield, turn your car back into Missouri, with Roaring River State Park as the objective. To fishermen, this cool paradise is notable as one of the first places in the state to have two to four-pound Rainbow trout. To the tourist or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best spot that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

That Word in Anger...

You spoke it loudly and without concern, but did it solve any problems for you? You told him off, but did you get the order? Sure, relief at the time may seem sweet and bear up your own ego, but soon a dirty, gray regret sets in. Count ten??? Ah, you'd better count to a hundred or more and, by so doing, have a word fitly spoken. God said, "Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools." Eccl. 7:9. Angry words can't be called back. One can't unsay them. The damage they do may be irreparable. Want to quit your foolishness? Then, seek out righteous men for your companions and ask God to help stay your tongue for, "He that is soon angry dealeth foolishly."
